INTRODUCTION

Before restorative justice can become a guiding principle of efforts to contend with and reduce crime in Hawaii, it must first be understood and supported as a general concept. However, the term can be more confusing than the concept behind it, and, to further compound the issue, there exists no unanimously agreed upon definition of “restorative justice.”

One helpful component in efforts to foster a basic knowledge of restorative justice is to demonstrate that many of its defining characteristics are identifiable in existing criminal justice programs. Not only can a better overall understanding of the concept be arrived at in this manner, but the exercise can also demonstrate that restorative justice does not necessarily require doing things in exclusively new and unfamiliar ways. This relatively simple self-test also provides a baseline measure of “where things are at today” and indicates the areas that may require the most improvement and support.

In April 1998, the Crime Prevention & Justice Assistance Division surveyed several of Hawaii’s criminal justice agencies. Survey recipients were asked to provide contact information and descriptions for each of their criminal justice programs, and to “rank” each program in six categories of indicators that have been suggested as defining characteristics of restorative justice-oriented programs.¹ Information about 78 unique programs has been compiled for this report.

It is important to note that individual programs neither are nor are not “restorative justice programs.” Rather, it is the statewide assemblage of programs that summarily indicates the status of restorative justice in Hawaii. Individual programs merely provide the pieces of a much larger picture, although it is a picture that is never complete—there is always room for one more piece. Ultimately, it is hoped that this report will help to show how the restorative justice picture currently appears in Hawaii, and how it could appear in the future.

RESTORATIVE JUSTICE IN HAWAII

This chart shows the 78 agencies' average scores for each of the six characteristics of restorative justice that were discussed on page 5. A score of 0 would indicate that virtually none of the agencies do any work at all in this area, while a score of 2 would mean that every one of the agencies considers the area to represent a central, defining characteristic of each of their criminal justice programs.

As can be seen, the surveyed programs appear strongest in the areas of a) building connections between community members and groups, and; b) providing opportunities and encouragement for offenders to take responsibilities for their actions. The programs have the comparatively lowest scores in the areas of a) providing direct services to victims, and; b) providing opportunities for victims get more involved in the criminal justice process.

Agency: Criminal Injuries Compensation Commission
 Program: Victim Compensation
 Address: 333 Queen St., #404, Honolulu, HI, 96813
 Phone: 808.587.1143
 Fax: 808.587.1146

The purpose of the Commission is to aid victims of criminal acts by providing monetary compensation to victims of certain crimes or to dependents of deceased victims, and for indemnification of private citizens for personal injury or property damages suffered in the prevention of crime or the apprehension of a criminal. Compensation may be awarded for out-of-pocket medical expenses, lost earnings, loss of dependents, or funeral expenses that are not covered by other sources.

Agency: Department of the Attorney General
 Program: Community Action Seminar
 Address: CPJAD, 425 Queen Street, Honolulu, HI, 96813
 Phone: 808.586.1150
 Fax: 808.586.1373
 Web Site: www.cpja.ag.state.hi.us

The Community Action Seminar is a forum by which members of the community get together to design and implement action plans for their neighborhoods that address community problems with substance abuse, juvenile crime, violence, and other issues. Seminar participants are provided with the latest information on subjects relating to the reduction and prevention of crime, learn practical ways to design community action plans, and are facilitated through a process of team building, leadership, communication, and other motivational skills to successfully implement their community action plans.

Agency: Department of Public Safety
 Program: Sex Offender Treatment Program (SOTP)
 Address: 919 Ala Moana Blvd., Suite 405, Honolulu, HI , 96814
 Phone: 808.587.1271
 Fax: 808.587.1280

SOTP is offered statewide at every facility housing incarcerated sex offenders. The program follows the Relapse Prevention Model, which takes nearly two years to complete before inmates may qualify for parole. The SOTP therapists demand total accountability and honesty from participants. Honesty can be verified with mandatory polygraph testing. Since January 1988, no sex offender who completed the SOTP and was paroled in Hawaii with aftercare therapy and intensive supervision has been re-convicted for a new sex offense.

PROGRAMS ON THE BIG ISLAND

Agency: Big Island Task Force for Criminal Justice
 Program: Alternative Sanctions Subcommittee
 Address: 1045 A Kilauea Ave., Hilo, HI , 96720
 Phone: 808.961.7600 or 808.933.8825
 Fax: 808.961.7676 or 808.933.8826

The subcommittee considers, reviews, and develops programs that may be done locally with available resources. Recent planning and development efforts include the Chainless Gang project and the Sign Holding program (based on Judge Mossman's program on Maui). The focus of the subcommittee is to help develop programs that address offender accountability and responsibility with efforts for restoration or giving back to the community and victims.

 Address: 34 Rainbow Dr., Hilo, HI , 96720
 Phone: 808.961.0466
 Fax: 808.934.3503

The DVIAT emerged in 1994 through a Byrne Memorial Grant. One hundred and sixty individuals from the Judiciary, law enforcement, service agencies, local businesses, and the community are members of DVIAT. Members meet regularly to examine proactive methods to deal with violence, safeguard victims, and counsel offenders.

Since November 1994, HCCC Food Service Unit in a joint venture with Correctional Industries has prepared over 3,630 lunch and dinner meals monthly for Hawaii County Police Cell Block. These “heart healthy” meals are nutritionally balanced and low in saturated fat, and are prepared daily for detainees kept in the County’s cell block. This program has provided opportunities for the inmates to learn vocational skills and to gain a better understanding of the special needs of the disabled and the elderly. In addition, the program allows the inmates to engage in meaningful work and earn wages, a portion of which is deducted to defray the costs of incarceration and victim restitution payments.

 Address: 349 Kapiolani St., Hilo, HI , 96720
 Phone: 808.961.2346
 Fax: 808.961.2294

Since 1995, community policing officers have been involved in the formation of Neighborhood Watch programs, which are in approximately 120 Big Island communities. The formation of Citizen Patrols in downtown Hilo and the Kailua-Kona Village have found success in getting community members involved. Officers have been instrumental in forming partnerships with community groups, businesses, and government and non-government agencies. Involvement with youth activities has found much success with the Teen Dances held monthly in Kona. Sports activities such as Midnight Basketball were also successful, and many youths, as well as parents, are looking forward to the continuance of these types of activities. Currently, the Department has the following deployment: South Hilo - 4 officers; Hamakua - 1 officer; North/South Kohala - 2 officers; Ka'u - 1 officer; and Puna - 2 officers.

 Address: 349 Kapiolani St., Hilo, HI , 96720
 Phone: 808.961.2346
 Fax: 808.961.2294

The Hawaii County Police Department, in partnership with the State Department of Education, offers the DARE program to elementary, junior, and senior high students. Over 7,000 third, fifth, eighth, and tenth graders participated during SY 1997-98. Since 1995, the Department's DARE officer instructors have presented the National DARE Parent Program to over 200 parents islandwide. Extracurricular activities include youth conferences, summer programs, and educational exhibits at school and community events.

 Address: 301 Keawe St., Hilo, HI, 96720
 Phone: 808.933.8825
 Fax: 808.933.8826

The Chainless Gang was created to assist offenders who were hard to place within the community or who had failed community service requirements. They were placed in a group under the supervision of an adult corrections office within the downtown Hilo area. The group provided community restoration efforts such as cleaning the downtown area, painting a bridge, and assisting with other beautification projects. The group earned a distinctive place in the community, but, due to the lack of a corrections officer to continue to assist in the program, the Chainless Gang has been shut down.

 Address: 301 Keawe St., Hilo, HI, 96720
 Phone: 808.933.8825
 Fax: 808.933.8826

Sign holding is a voluntary alternative to incarceration or a reduction of incarceration offered by a judge to an offender. Should the offender accept this voluntary sanction, the court would refer the case to ISC for implementation. The offender follows a prescribed set of program rules and follows a specific sign holding schedule with times and locations. Among the goals of the program are: sentencing consideration by the court, offender accountability, public notification to promote public safety, public education about crime in the community, and deterrence for potential non-law abiding citizens.

 Phone: 808.961.7600
 Fax: 808.961.7676

Adult Probation conducts presentence and other investigations, and supervises offenders placed on community supervision through the courts. The mission of Adult Probation is to facilitate defendants' compliance with the courts' orders and to enhance the safety of the community through efficient crime reduction and prevention services and activities that assist and guide offenders in their rehabilitation. Within the scope of this mission, Adult Probation solicits victim impact statements and informs victims of the right to be heard at sentencing. Also during the presentence phase victims are informed of the Criminal Injuries Compensation Commission and restitution information. During community supervision, efforts are made for restitution collection.

 Phone: 808.934.5750
 Fax: 808.961.6510

This program addresses the need to hold the juvenile offender more directly accountable to his victims and to provide the victim financial compensation for losses suffered as a result of the offender's actions. Victims are provided an opportunity to submit a claim for restitution. JMRP verifies the claim and submits a recommendation to the Court. Should restitution be ordered, the program monitors to assure that the offender is complying with regular payments.

The Family Court is a division of the Circuit Court, and specializes in juvenile and domestic matters. The Court provides a number of counseling, guidance, self-help, detention, and supervisory programs for children and adults. The Family Court retains jurisdiction over children under the age of 18 who violate the law or ordinances; are neglected or abandoned; are beyond the control of their parents or other custodians; live in an environment injurious to their welfare; or behave in a manner injurious to their own or another's welfare. Activities are geared toward facilitating the Court's determination of the appropriate and timely disposition of all juveniles referred. The Family Court also has jurisdiction of adults pursuant to HRS 571-14.
